JUDGES' STAND ON WHEELS

Rumored that Prominent pete at New Orleans.

It is reported that August Belmont, whose filly Lady Violet ran second to Morello in the Futurity Stakes, will petition the Coney Island Jockey Club to disqualify the winner, alleging as a cause that the partnership race has been violated. Morello ran under the name of F. Van Ness, who is supposed to be the sole owner. It has been reported from time to time that William M. Singery, a Philadelphia, had a part interest in the green

“Rule 25—All partnerships and the names and address of every person having any interest in a horse, the relative proportion of such interest and the terms of any sale with contingencies, or of any lease or arrangement must be registered at least half an hour previous to the race with the clerk of the course.”

before a horse sold with contingencies released or which is a joint property can stand for any race," &c.

The effect of this rule is to disqualify a winner whose joint ownership has not been registered. If Mr. Belmont contemplates registering Morelio's Futurity because the rule mentioned above has been violated, his action will not be regarded by any trainer.

If Morello's win should be protested and the colt disqualified, it will be absolute evidence that there's more behind the suspension of Frank Van Ness than has yet been made public. Van Noss is not, as www.abcnews.com

A great and brilliant scheme is reported to have originated in the brain of Pierre Lorillard. He conceived the stupendous idea of having the judges' stand put on wheels and travel around with the horses on the trailer system. This isn't a bad scheme when you think it over. It might be made practical and would be quite an innovation. An upper story might be added for the Board of Control. An additional story might also be arranged for the owners of horses contesting in races so that they could shout instructions to their jockeys. Perhaps, however, it would be a better idea to have the track move around on wheels a la "County Fair," so that the whole race would be run in front of the grand stand.

Here is a brilliant chance for inventors. The turf is progressing, and all novelties such as the Board of Control, trolley judges, and will be eagerly welcomed.

Uncle Sam was jumped on in the opening race and badly cut down. He will not face the starter again this season.

Goodate is the crack jockey at Latonia.

Fred Gebhard won a race with Canvas on Wednesday and a race yesterday with the Papoose colt. His friends were congratulating him yesterday upon his luck. He didn't look very cheerful and in the explanation that followed, his friends learned that he had telegraphed his trainer, Frank McCabe, to let several hundred dollars on each horse. McCabe didn't fancy the chances.

It is said that Mr. Abingdon, the well known English turfman, has made an offer of £20,000 for the services of Jockey Wall next season. This is worse than the fair tales that come out of the West.

nick Finzer and James E. Maddox. Maddox bought the colt with money loaned by Finzer, the latter agreeing to receive the money back from the colt's winnings. The colt has a ways run under the name of the Lasting Stables (Finzer's) and there is a very muddy appearance to the whole affair. Maddox is considered a suitor for the possession of Kim Lee, who is at Finzer's farm.

It is said that W. C. Daly, Green B. Morris, J. S. Campbell, J. J. McCafferty, Burrill Bros., and other prominent owners will take part in the Winter meeting at New Orleans.

A Manchester Merchant Confesses that He Murdered His Wife.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
LONDON, Sept. 30.—George Barker Cooper, a young merchant of Manchester, has confessed at Douglas, Isle of Wight, to the murder of his wife, which recently took place at the Regent Hotel there. He was on trial for the crime. After a hearing, a verdict of guilty was returned.

The crime. The case was a sensational one. The murder followed a quarrel and was accomplished with a penknife.

A cartoon illustration showing a man in a suit running away from a large, circular sign. The sign has the words 'PUBLIC' at the top and 'APPROVAL' at the bottom, with a star in the center. The man is running on a path that leads away from the sign, which is set on a small island or platform. The background is a simple sketch of a landscape with some trees and a body of water.

CRAZED BY CHOLERA.
An Unknown Man Thinks the Earth Filled with Cholera Germs.
Officer Duggan, of the Washington Heights Squad, found a young man on the cable car-track at Amsterdam avenue and One Hun-red and Sixty-seventh street early this morning digging up the roadway with a stick and scraping the dirt into the cable slot. He gave no heed to a fast approaching car and Duggan signalled the gripman, who brought the car to a standstill within a few feet of the stranger. When the officer approached the man he motioned him away, saying:

"Do you want to get the cholera? The ground all about here is filled with cholera germs. I am the Chief Inspector of the Washington Board of Health." The officer took the man to the station-house, where he gave the name of Henry Wach, Chenango Villa, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. At the Harlem Court he gave the name of Charles Cowan, of Wappinger Falls, N. Y., but subsequently he told Judge Meade that he boarded with his brother at some place in East Thirty-fourth street. He was committed for mental exami-

CLEVELAND WOULD NOT DRINK.
But Touched to His Lips the Glass
a Kentucky Lady Sent.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
FALL RIVER, MASS., Sept. 30.—An incident of ex-President Cleveland's trip to New York on the afternoon Atlantic coast night line, reported

While seated at the dining-table he was approached by a waiter, who brought him a glass of wine from a Mrs. Goddard, a Kentucky lady, who was travelling with her four daughters. She sent her compliments with it and expressed a wish for his continued good health and his success in the campaign. The ex-President arose, bowed his acknowledgment, touched the glass to his lips, but did not drink. He asked to be excused, as he had decided to drink no intoxicants during the present struggle. The announcement was greeted with enthusiastic applause.
